

Humpback Whale Art With Miss Churchill

I completed an art activity with my students where we explored beautiful humpback whales through line and watercolor. I first showed the students an example of my finished product, and then guided the students through the drawing step-by-step. Once the students had the body of the whale complete, we experimented with different wash techniques creating various shades of blue, green, and purple. We also watched some incredible videos of humpback whales in the wild and listened to their songs. I really enjoyed this lesson as it allowed me to share my love of whales and art with my students and I could see that it gave them excitement as they created their own.

My finished product and whiteboard guide.

Here are some student examples!

